

“When the train arrived to Szeged, I started to feel like a new born baby. After visiting the university, I was overwhelmed by the very beautiful architecture of the campus. And I have to admit that people here are the most helpful and friendliest people I have ever met after living abroad for a long time and traveling in many countries.”