

Dr. Olivier Dutour is a professor of medical anthropology at the universities of Paris and Bordeaux (EPHE-PSL – Université Paris, University of Bordeaux/CNRS), an internationally renowned and school-founder university professor of biological anthropology and paleopathology. He has been an influential collaborative partner of the University of Szeged (and its legal predecessors) for more than thirty years as supervisor of five joint doctoral theses, co-supervisor of several joint research projects, organizer of numerous joint international scientific events, co-author or co-editor of nearly a hundred scientific publications and a distinguished guest lecturer who regularly participates in the courses organized by the Institute of Biology of the Faculty of Science and Informatics.